

The Quoted Companies Alliance champions the UK's community of 1000+ small and mid-sized publicly traded businesses and the firms that advise them.

We believe the public markets can be the best place for companies to source the funds to grow, operate transparently and distribute wealth, fairly.

Our members range from tiny companies seeking a commercial breakthrough for their cutting-edge technology, to well-established brands pushing into new export markets or going on the acquisition trail.

They straddle sectors and geographies, from fintechs in Huddersfield to engineers in Stoke-on-Trent and security experts in Abingdon. All have tapped shareholders via the public markets to fund-raise, acquire, incentivise, export, grow.

Their size varies too: from a market capitalisation of a few million pounds to a few billion, trading on AIM, Aquis and the Main Market up to and including the FTSE 250.

We also welcome the broadest cross section of these companies' supporters: nomads, brokers, accountants, lawyers, registrars, plus experts in sustainability, board talent, remuneration, PR and risk – as well as investors that underpin the entire ecosystem.

We influence:

Through close working relationships with HM Treasury, the Department for Business and Trade, the Financial Conduct Authority and the Financial Reporting Council we push for proportionate regulation and supportive equity markets so that our companies can focus on growth.

We interact:

We connect our members through year-round events so they can gain a greater understanding of the latest policy advances, hear from politicians, regulators and investors, swap ideas with peers – and forge new business connections.

We inform:

Our boardroom guides help members run their companies better. Our research reports spotlight issues that matter – such as soaring audit costs and problems with proxy advisers – and underpin our campaigns work. Our newsletters keep you up to date.

Why Join the QCA?
